Commissioner MacLean wants to know why Supt. Byrnes has not preferred charges against Capt. Haughey, inasmuch as Central Office men raided houses in his precinct on or about the same time that Captains Price and Martens's districts were invaded.

Capt. Westerveit was at Police Headquarters to-day. He saw Inspector Williams, whose protege he is. Capt. Westerveit did not appear happy.

It is possible that other Captains will be placed on the rack. If the trouble is taken, evidence can be found in almost every precinct.

Surprised if charges are preferred against him.

Capt. Doherty is also spoken of as liable to be placed on trial.

The Superintendent was asked this morning to express himself concerning the recent and contemplated trials, but he declined to talk more than to say that the whole matter belonged to the Police Commissioners. He, as Superintendent, only did his duty in laying the facts as they exist before the Board.

One thing in connection with the warfare in the Department that is often referred to by those about Headquarters is that the Captains who have been referred to by those about Headquarters is that the Captains who have been tried are Inspector Williams's pets, and now his left bower, Westervelt, is going to be called upon to explain things.

"I was retained by the Committee as counsel, and I consider myself under the direction of the Committee. But if Mr. Sutherland made any suggestions to me I should probably act upon them.

Mr. Grasse would give no direct reply concerning the imputation that he was only to look after the subpoenas and the gathering of evidence.

Lawyer John W. Goff, whose letter, written early last week, was declared by thairman Lexow not to have been received until Thursday evening, declined to say more this morning than that it was strange his letter should have taken so long to get to Albany.

"I know," he said, "that when I board a train Monday evening I am quite sure of getting to Albany some time the following morning. It seems that the mail delivery was not in working order when my letter got around."

He was appointed on the force in 1891. The charge against Woolston specifies that while off duty on Sunday last Woolston bought a drink of whiskey in Blancke's saloon. After he drank it, he told the bartender he was a detective, but that he did not wish to push matters. He hinted at a consideration.

Just as the bartender was handing Woolston a "fiver," Blancke came in and insisted on being arrested. Woolston took him to the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street station and on Monday Blancke was discharged in the Harlem Court. The saloon-keeper at once preferred charges against Woolston.

Victim of Malicious Prosecution. William J. O'Neill, a tailor at 2148 Third avenue, intends to bring suit for

$10,000 damages against Justice of the Peace Newton, of Coney Island and Mc-Kane fame, for malicious prosecution, Lawyer C. D. O'Donnell, of 62 Wall street, is O'Neill's counsel. He said to-day he would serve a summons and complaint on Judge Newton in a day or compiaint on Judge Newton in a day or two.

O'Neill was arrested on Aug. 17, 1891, at Coney Isl-nd, on a warrant sworn out by Louis Gottlieb, a West Brighton tailor. The latter ciaimed that O'Neill interfered with his business at the island by going there and peddling ciothing without a licelase.

It was on the latter complaint that O'Neill was arrested and locked up in a cell flooded with water. O'Neill was liberated on $100 bail after spending a night in the lock-up. When the case was tried a month later he was fined $25. The Court of Sessions later reversed Newton's decision, and O'Neill had his $100 bail refunded, but says he rever got his fine of $25 returned.

Mr. Stein also submitted an affidavit, in which he asserted that the real reason why this effort to have the proceedings dismissed was that Partridge wanted to save Mrs. Augusta Humphrey from supearing before Referre Meyer and telling what she knew.

Another affidavit, signed by Isador Mehrbach, gives a sensational turn to the story. The affidavit says that after Mehrbach had obtained judgment and Partridge had sworn, in supplementary proceedings, that he had no property and was dependent upon a brother in St. Louis for support, Partridge repeatedly promised to pay him the £2,312. The affidavit continues:

ure proceedings. The property consists of 124, 126 and 128 Fifth avenue and 2 West Eighteenth street. The property brought 437,000, and was purchased by the New York Realty Company and Henry Morgenthau. Albert Flake is the President of the Realty Company.

The motion to set aside the sale was made by Lawyer Albert Stickney, counsel for Trimothy Sullivan.

Sullivan held a mechanic's lien on the Logerot. He presented affidavits alleging that an agreement had been entered into by Flake and Morgenthau not to bid against each other on the property. The purchase price of $437,000 was sufficient to satisfy the rst mortgage holders and several other small claims, but it was insufficient to met the mechanics in the held by Sullivan. The latter considered the price as entirely inadequace, and believed the property to be worth at least $55,000, inasmuch as similar property nearly opposite the Logerot recently brought $615,000.

The purchasers contended that the sale had been conducted as required by law, and that Coudert Bros.' representative had been present and bid on the property.

Decision in favor of defendant, JAP WOULD BE A CITIZEN.
